Sounding Better!

News from Around the World

By Boris Schulze

The most important these days is to ask if you are all well and healthy!

You have probably read Gerd's Sounding Better! article and noticed that we had to postpone all of our seminars and trainings as well. We do not have new dates set yet, as the future development of COVID-19 is completely open. As soon as we have new dates, they will be published on our website.

But this is a good time to catch up with HYPACK and get some training at home. We have recorded all sessions during the HYPACK 2020 Training Event in January and uploaded them to our YouTube channel. So subscribe to our YouTube channel.

Kick back on your couch and, rather than watching some nonsense, watch the video's from our conference and teach yourself for free!

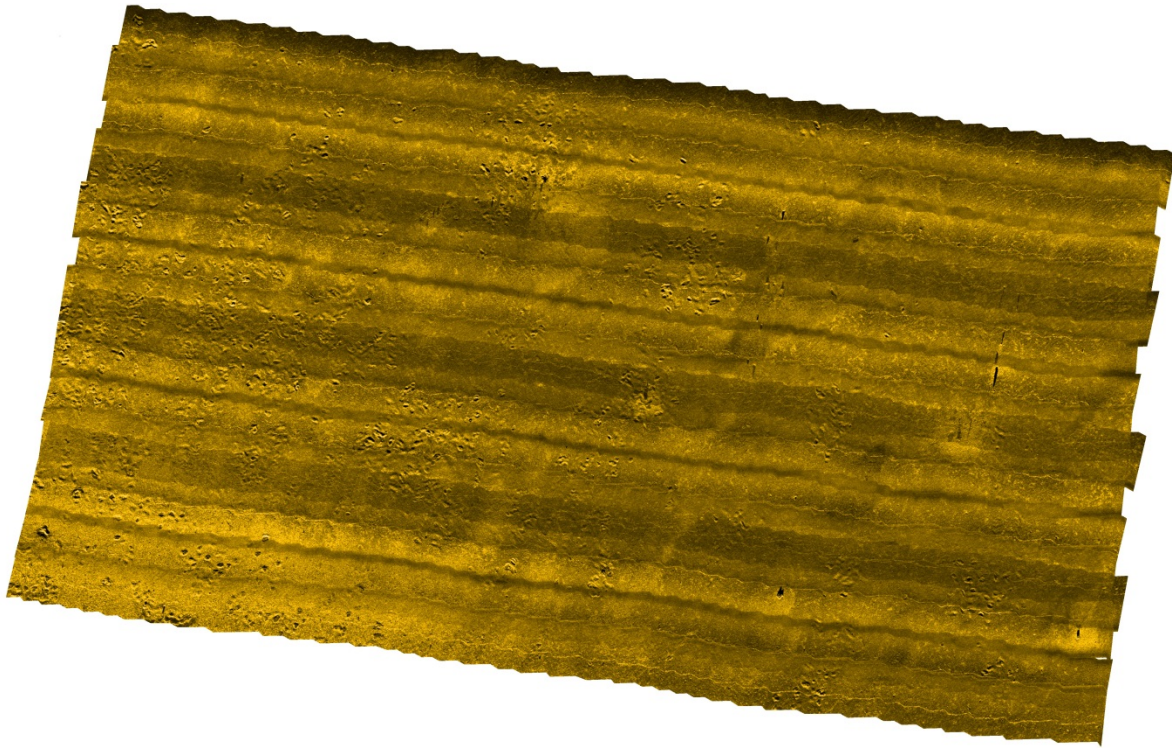

One of the new features in HYPACK 2020 is the blanking of the Nadir region in the mosaic. This was requested by a few users last year, so we did it. Now one user sent me a "before" and "after" picture from this new feature. The first picture shows a normal mosaic. You can see the effect of the nadir in the mosaic.

He processed the same data set now with the new Nadir blanking function.

Mosaic Without the Nadir

Quite a difference!

He stated: "I'm very happy with the result even after what was really very rudimentary effort in getting the mosaic done. With a bit of effort it will look even better!"

If you have something that you would like to share, a nice story, a fantastic picture or anything else. Let us know! We are more than happy to write about it and show it around!

Stay at home, stay healthy!
